Steering Committee News

Through the MCRUD survey, some of you indicated that you would like MCRUD to move some of their meetings to other areas of the state. MCRUD typically meets the fourth Tuesday of the month and is looking for locations starting in October. The host site will have to have conference calling and be willing to help coordinate the meeting with the MCRUD Coordinator. If you are interested in hosting a MCRUD meeting please contact us. Additionally, MCRUD is looking for speakers and topics of interest for steering committee meetings. If you have ideas for topics or speakers please let us know.

There is no meeting in August. The next MCRUD meeting is Tuesday, September 27. Dianne Perukel from the Office of Highway Safety Planning will be our featured speaker. She will provide an overview on how using social media websites and search engines has enhanced underage drinking enforcement efforts in Michigan. Keep up the good work! — Mike Tobias, MCRUD Coordinator

So They Say It’s Your Birthday!!!!!

I have had the pleasure of being a member of MCRUD for almost nine of its 15 years. My association with MCRUD and Prevention Network started soon after my move to the field of Substance Abuse Prevention. At that time, words like environmental change, community readiness, and coalition building were just starting to buzz. As a newbie in SA Prevention the buzz was loud and confusing so I used the best thing I ever learned in college; grab the person closest to you and ask what it meant. I quickly realized although there were some who could define environmental change, community readiness, and their counterparts, there seemed to be no one who could explain how to implement these new innovations.

That was until I landed around the table at a MCRUD meeting. I found friendly people who were ready, willing, and able to show me, or any fledgling preventionist, how to get the job done. MCRUD members are made up of some of the best preventionists working in the field. Some have been working in the prevention field for years, some for months, but they all have one thing in common: the undying commitment to provide a safe, healthy environment for the children, families, and residents of their communities. They shared their experiences, programs, and advice freely, as well as giving emotional support. To this day, MCRUD meetings are a place to get that needed boost when you have hit your head against that political wall so many times you look like Herman Munster (those under 35 Google it). There is no doubt that the members are the warm, strong body of MCRUD, but the heart is Prevention Network.

Prevention Network is not a stoic bureaucracy. It is made up of caring dedicated individuals committed to making the world a better place to live. Each and every one of PN’s staff gives 110% and sometimes more. They believe in prevention and the local grass roots groups that they support and it shows. PN is a model of public service and an example to all.

Happy 15th Birthday MCRUD, and congratulations to Prevention Network.

MCRUD 15th Birthday/Reunion

On July 22, MCRUD held their 15th Annual Birthday/Reunion Celebration at Frances Park in Lansing. About 40 MCRUD members gathered to celebrate and eat hotdogs, hamburgers, and birthday cake! Special thanks to Jill Melton, program assistant at PN, who baked the delicious cake. Aaron from Midland Area Partnership played his guitar to Guns N’ Roses and AC/DC classic songs on and off throughout the event while people caught up with one another. During lunch the 2011 “MCRUD Heroes” were honored. This year’s award winners were the following:

• Kaytlyn Sheldon - Media Shout Out
  Kaytlyn is a freelance writer for the Osceola Edition of the Pioneer in Reed City. Kaytlyn has written a three part series of articles on underage drinking and alcohol problems. She is passionate about reducing underage drinking and is very supportive of the Mecosta-Osceola Coalition to Reduce Underage Drinking.

• Kent County Prevention Coalition (KCPC) - Organization of the Year
  The KCPC has been consistently dedicated to planning and implementing effective underage drinking prevention strategies. Past year highlights included implementing a very successful “Above the Influence – Kent County” media campaign. See page seven for their local update information.

• Pat Gagliardi and Nida Samona - MCRUD State Heroes
  Pat and Nida were former Administrative Commissioners for the Michigan Liquor Control Commission. Nida was also the former Chair of the Commission. They were chosen because of their action and leadership to ban alcohol energy drinks.

Gov. Rick Snyder appointed Andrew J. Deloney to the Michigan Liquor Control Commission and designated him as chair Friday, June 10, 2011.

The commission is responsible for managing the beer, wine, distilled spirits and mixed spirit drink industry in the state. It oversees the licensing of both products and establishments as well as the manufacture and sale of products in Michigan. It also enforces the state’s liquor laws and rules.

“Andy’s knowledge and expertise of the food and beverage industry and in a variety of public policy areas will be a tremendous asset in the work of the Liquor Control Commission,” Snyder said.

Deloney, of White Lake, is currently vice president of public affairs for the Michigan Restaurant Association, a position he has held since 2003. Before that, he was the assistant state director for Michigan’s arm of the National Federal of Independent Business. Deloney also previously served as a legislative assistant in the Michigan House of Representatives. He is a member of the Michigan Society of Association Executives and the Council of State Restaurants Association. Deloney earned a bachelor’s degree in political science with a concentration in public service from Albion College.

He replaces Nida Samona and will serve a four-year term expiring June 12, 2015. The appointment is subject to the advice and consent of the Senate.

Governor Snyder appointed Teri Quimby to the Michigan Liquor Control Commission on Thursday, June 23, 2011.

“Teri’s background and expertise will be instrumental in the work done by the commission,” Snyder said.

Quimby, of Brighton, most recently worked as a self-employed attorney and certified civil mediator. Before that, she served as the deputy director and senior legal counsel for the Michigan House of Representatives Republican Policy Office where her duties included managing business issues with the commerce committee and serving as the legal resource for environmental and energy related legislative programs. Quimby serves on the State Bar of Michigan Character and Fitness Committee and previously served on the Utility Consumer Participation Board. She earned a bachelor’s degree from the James Madison College at Michigan State University and a law degree from the Thomas M. Cooley Law School.

Quimby will serve as a commissioner and replaces Patrick M. Gagliardi. The appointment is for a four-year term expiring June 12, 2015, and is subject to the advice and consent of the Senate.

MICAP Supports Beer Tax Increase and Alcohol Legislation

The American Alcohol and Drug Information Foundation (AADIF) recently added Dr. Vernon K. Smith, Ken Hoffman, and Dr. James McCoy to the Board of Directors and hired Linda Keefe-Lewis as the executive director of Michigan Council of Alcohol Problems (MICAP). MICAP is a program of AADIF.

• MICAP is working to raise the beer tax by five cents on every glass, bottle, and can sold in Michigan. Youth who begin drinking before age 15 are FOUR times more likely to develop alcohol dependence than those who begin drinking at the age of 21, according to the National Longitudinal Alcohol Epidemiologic Survey. It is imperative that we as adults help teens delay the onset of drinking alcoholic beverages. The Center for Science in the Public Interest reported that the higher the cost of beer, the less beer those teens will consume. MICAP has an educational endeavor ahead of it because the current legislative body is a non-taxing legislature, and the beer industry opposes an increase in tax because they do not want their sales threatened. However, if we want our children to avoid alcohol at young ages, so that they will be less likely to develop a dependence on alcohol later in life, then we need to promote this initiative to raise the beer tax.

• MICAP was instrumental in the passage of the Keg Tagging Law last year. However, HB4137 has been introduced to repeal this law. This law requires that purchasers of keg beer be identified so that if there is an incident in which an underage person was served keg beer, that keg can be traced back to the purchaser. This holds adults accountable regarding serving beer to underage persons.

• MICAP is interested that Governor Snyder’s Executive Order 2011-5 created the Office of Regulatory Reinvention (ORR) within the Department of Licensing and Regulatory Affairs. The Director of ORR and Chief Regulatory Officer of the State of Michigan is Steve Hilfinger. The ORR is forming a MLCC Advisory Board. Several prevention advocates from various organizations have applied to serve on this board that will meet for about four months to, according to Hilfinger, “create a more efficient and effective liquor regulatory system in Michigan.” MLCC Advisory Council members are expected to be announced by August 15th.

• MICAP is working with other state and local prevention groups to keep strong alcohol regulations in place, as they protect public safety. According to the Marin Institute, residents of alcohol control states, such as Michigan, consume 14 percent less spirits than deregulated states. And of other alcoholic beverages, such as beer and wine, residents consume seven percent less. Organizations and individuals will have an opportunity to sign on to a letter, which outlines why keeping strong alcohol regulations are so important to Michigan.

Dr. Vernon K. Smith is a Principal with Health Management Associates, where he focuses on Medicaid, Medicare, SCHIP, state budgets and trends in the health care market place. He has authored several reports on enrollment, spending and policy trends in Medicaid and SCHIP, on the Medicare prescription drug benefit, and on state directions to address the uninsured.

Ken Hoffman is an accomplished businessman, author and career communications professional, is the Chairman and Executive Director of the Little Caesars Pizza Bowl who envisioned a successful northern bowl game that celebrates Detroit. He is the founder of the bowl and one of its driving forces. His keen management skills have been invaluable in the bowl’s evolution from a startup bowl game to an annual holiday event, now in its 13th year.

Dr. McCoy is Board Certified in Internal Medicine. He attended Kalamazoo College for his undergraduate studies and went on to receive his medical degree from Wayne State University in Detroit. He went through the residency program at Henry Ford Hospital. He is also a member of the Ingham County Medical Society and the Michigan State Medical Society and has served on numerous boards and committees. Dr. McCoy is married, has three daughters, one son, and three grandchildren. His hobbies include tennis, boating, and travel.

Linda, previously, coordinator for the Tri-County Asset Independence Coalition, also served as an Eaton County Commissioner from 2006 to 2011 and as an Ingham County Commissioner for the 1997-1998 term. Keefe-Lewis was born in Rutland, Vermont and lives with her husband in Dimondale, Michigan.

To Friends of MCRUD and Prevention Network

From Ken Dail
Prevention Network Executive Director

As many of you are aware, PN has enjoyed a funding partnership with Michigan’s Office of Highway Safety Planning for many years.

Unfortunately, due to cuts that OHSP is receiving from their federal partners, they will not be able to offer PN a contract for next fiscal year.

PN is actively pursuing funding to replace the OHSP contract. We are engaging several state and federal agencies, private foundations, local agencies and organizations, and individuals who have been supportive in PN’s past.

Although no promises have been made, and nothing is written in stone, we are currently discussing next year’s contract with the Bureau of Substance Abuse and Addiction Services.

My goal in providing this information is to ensure that the most accurate and current update regarding PN’s future is made available. It is all too easy to hear a half story, or read a post on a blog or on Facebook, and assume the worst. I intend to keep you informed of future progress and will share more good news as it is available.

Until then, I encourage you to share this information, as you see appropriate, with your networks. If there are additional questions, or if your networks would like additional information, please send them our way. We can still be reached at 800-968-4968. My e-mail is kend@preventionnetwork.org. We are happy to answer questions, give upates, and share our address for those who wish to send contributions large or small.

And, of course, if you have any questions or need additional information, don’t hesitate to call.

We look forward to serving the people of the state of Michigan for the next 25 years and beyond. And we look forward to continuing our work with all of you… Thanks for your time and commitment to building healthier communities and preventing substance abuse in Michigan.

Alcohol Justice is born!

On July 27, the Marin Institute renamed themselves “Alcohol Justice.” According to Bruce Lee Livingston, Executive Director and CEO of the organization, “The old name, ‘Marin Institute,’ is respected but not very informative. ‘Alcohol Justice’ organizes campaigns around the nation and globe to reduce alcohol-related harm. Our new name shows that we are vigilant, fair, and laser focused.”

The Detroit Auto Dealers Association (DADA) awarded high school students who took a stand against underage drinking with $18,000 in scholarships at the annual Courageous Persuaders Awards Celebration last May in Troy, MI. The DADA is the primary sponsor and administrator of the Courageous Persuaders Video Competition program, which is facilitated through the DADA Education Foundation. The competition, now in its 12th year, encourages high school students to create 30-second television commercials warning middle school students about the dangers of drinking alcohol. The 2011 contest drew 898 participants who submitted 514 video entries, which included thousands of students from schools throughout the U.S.

Winners were selected after several rounds of judging. During the first round, a panel, from the DADA viewed the entries and identified the top 60 contenders. Those entries were then reviewed by students at middle schools who completed questionnaires. Results of the questionnaires determined the winners. The 2012 video submission deadline is Thursday, February 9, 2012. Visit CourageousPersuaders.com for more information or contact Sandy Herp at (248) 283-5138 or sherp@dada.org.
Safe-Service of Alcohol Campaign

The Ingham Substance Abuse Prevention Coalition (ISAP) recently completed a project to reduce binge drinking for the month of July, visited all of the alcohol-serving establishments in downtown Lansing, and invited them to join ISAP’s safe-service of alcohol campaign. This action complimented the 4th of July, Lansing Lugnut baseball games, and the Common Ground Music Festival which all brought many people to downtown Lansing. ISAP used the “Domino Strategy” promotional material designed by FACE. Several restaurants/bars joined the cause by placing table tents, being part of the press release, and supporting safe alcohol consumption.

Excerpt from the Kent County Prevention Commission Community Report

On a typical rainy March afternoon, nearly 550 teenagers make their way into a large theatre at the Celebration Cinema in Grand Rapids for the debut of the film Above the Influence – Kent County. The movie, part of the Kent County Prevention Coalition’s (KCPC) ongoing efforts to mobilize support around drug and alcohol prevention, is a unique collaboration between youth and community partners. As the restless teens scurry around the theatre to find their seats, Shannon Cohen, the KCPC coordinator, confidently makes her way to the front of the screen to address the audience. The predominantly youthful crowd cheers as she greets everyone via microphone. Cohen smiles back, waves, and begins to introduce the movie.

“That’s what Above the Influence – Kent County was all about,” recalls Cohen weeks later. “It really embodied the best of community coming together.” Cohen started with KCPC in 2008 as its coordinator and co-chair. In that time, she has seen the coalition grow from a dream to local movement that continues to gain momentum. According to the network180 annual report, prevention efforts in Kent County served over 75,000 individuals in 2010.

“When I joined the coalition, they were working to bring providers and professionals together,” relates Cohen. “In the past three years we have come a long way. We focus a lot on youth engagement and how we make the message of prevention relevant and palatable to youth.”

Cohen, who has a background in urban renewal and community mobilization, will soon graduate with a Masters Degree in public administration and non-profit management. Despite these ambitions, she still finds inspiration among the youth she serves and plans to continue her work with the KCPC.

“Youth are the answer,” explains Cohen. “They are not inhibited by the barriers that stop us as adults such as resources or questions like ‘how are we going to do it”? They are naturally creative, naturally ready to think outside of the box. They are fearless and uninhibited. I like working with youth because they inspire me to live the same.”

This inspiration has come full circle.

“I have big dreams,” says eleventh grader Salina Beveridge. “I see people smoking and drinking and making poor decisions. The thing is, when you make poor decisions like that, you are bound to get caught and then your life is ruined – you have to pay money for fines, court fees, or other consequences and face hassles you just don’t need. I am starting to apply for scholarships for school and I don’t want to have to write things down on my record or be ashamed of what I have done or have to explain poor choices.”

Many other high school youths are equally inspired by the KCPC’s message. “I plan on working and going to college to pursue a business degree,” says eleventh grader Fabian Rodriguez. “I’m not like everyone else – I tend to be on the quiet side, but a lot of people trust me and tell me stuff—confide in me. A recent negative thing I see people doing is just walking out in the middle of class to skip the rest of the class. I don’t get down with that type of stuff or smoking weed.”

Another eleventh grader, Omar Mansah, has professional athletics as a goal. “My favorite soccer player is Ronaldo out of Brazil,” says Omar.

Omar is originally from Philadelphia and moved to live with family in Grand Rapids. He continues, “Back in Philly, there were a lot of kids who were disrespectful to teachers, getting into fights at lunch and after school, and joining a lot of gangs. My family has sacrificed a lot to give me a better life. My advice to young people is to be yourself.”

Beginning with town hall events three years ago, the KCPC has evolved to embrace innovative ideas for engaging communities in West Michigan. They continue to plan their annual Family Day that offers a free dinner for attendees. The event was inspired from research that found kids will less likely participate in underage drinking if they spend more time with family around the dinner table.

“We looked at how we can use local traditions to promote the Family Day and prevention,” says Cohen. “For the first time we saw hundreds of people coming together around the idea of prevention.”

The KCPC also changed their town halls to be more youth driven. In 2009 they used performing arts to deliver messages and collaborated with local hip-hop musicians George Moss and AB & Coconut Brown.

“We started to use Facebook and social media to deliver the prevention message,” explains Cohen. “We increased partnerships with local schools and the faith community. The iCreate program allowed kids to express themselves in the arts why they choose to live drug free.”

Last December, the coalition attended a conference where the White House National Drug Control Policy’s nationally recognized campaign “Above the Influence” was a presenter.

“Above the Influence is a national brand through the Office of National Drug Control Policy,” says Cohen. “You can’t watch MTV for thirty minutes without seeing an Above the Influence commercial. It is a brand that prides itself on being relevant to youth and all demographic lines.”

The national brand of Above the Influence presented an offer to the prevention representatives attending the conference. They would help support a local Above the Influence activity.

“Not a lot of people wanted to do it,” relates Cohen. “But we said… what if?”

After months of collaborating with local youth, parents, providers, and production studios, the KCPC...
What is the appropriate way to deal with a repeat drinking and driving offender? The current criminal sanction for a third offense is up to five years in prison and up to a $5000 fine plus court costs; license sanctions; restitution; reimbursement of costs to the police and prosecution; driver responsibility fees and vehicle immobilization. But is this the most effective way to deal with the issue?

The most recent studies and literature would indicate that there is a better way to deal with the repeat offender utilizing a judicial therapeutic approach. With this in mind, the 54A Sobriety Court was created in 2005 with the goal of reducing the incidence of repeat drinking and driving offenses. According to Judge Louise Alderson, the Sobriety Court judge, this program concentrates on offenders with three or more convictions for alcohol/driving related offenses. The court’s mission is to enhance the public safety and community welfare by reducing recidivism among these repeat drunk driving offenders. This program is highlighted by intensive supervision, individualized treatment, and personal accountability with frequent judicial review. The program utilizes court and community resources to support individuals in developing and maintaining a substance free, sober lifestyle.

Since its inception in October, 2005, 78 individuals have been admitted into the program. 33 have successfully completed it, and 27 are still in the active phases of the program. Unsuccessful participants were sentenced under the traditional model.

The Sobriety Court is structured post-adjudication. The offender, under a delayed sentence, enters a guilty plea to the felony charge and is allowed to reduce that to the lesser misdemeanor offense of Operating While Intoxicated, second offense upon successful completion of the Sobriety Court program. Upon entering the program, the client is placed on an intensive probation track for a minimum of nine months. Probation is structured in four phases, but is currently under review that will potentially modify the program:

- Phase 1 – Focus on substance abuse counseling – eight week minimum
- Phase 2 – Focus on relapse prevention – eight week minimum
- Phase 3 – Sobriety Maintenance – eight week minimum
- Phase 4 – Transitional – twelve week minimum

Each of the program’s phases is designed with a + for requirements performed which advances them through the phases. Each phase requires interaction with the judge, beginning with bi-weekly review hearing.

Upon successful completion of the program, graduates participate in a public commencement ceremony. If there are violations, a participant is brought before the judge, immediately if the individual is incarcerated or at a violation hearing at the next review date. Relapse issues will be handled with intermediate sanctions. Individuals will be terminated from the program for a new drinking and driving offense or for ongoing noncompliance with the program and sentenced based on the original felony charge.

The 54A Sobriety Court program is open to non-violent offenders who have been convicted of three or more drinking and driving offenses. All OWI III files are reported by the clerk’s staff to the probation department so they are aware of new cases pending. Participants must live in the greater Lansing area (due to issues of transportation to/from court, counseling and testing). The program does not discriminate based on race, gender, sex or national origin, as long as they meet the original eligibility requirements. Non-eligibility criteria may include such things as a history of violent offenses, drug delivery and sale and a significant mental health diagnosis. The program is voluntary.

Members of the Sobriety Court team are encouraged with the success rate here in Lansing and that message is spreading throughout the community. If you continue to drink and drive you will be held accountable, but you will also be given a chance to change your lifestyle by learning new tools to cope and overcome your addiction. It is not the final answer, but we are finding great success with this model of judicial intervention.

was ready to unveil the new movie aptly entitled, Above the Influence – Kent County. The movie features interviews of youth talking about prevention along with a wealth of messages about how the power of positive thinking and confidence. During the movie’s debut, the audience of teens watched in awe, occasionally cheering when they saw their fellow classmates as big as life on the large screen.

Eleventh grader Vince Robledo reflects the sentiment of the many youth involved with the Above the Influence project.

“I see a lot of people making bad decisions because they are afraid to do their own thing,” says Vince. “I used to care what people thought of me too and it took some time to get comfortable in my own skin.”

Vince continues, “It saddens me when I see people I’m cool with do dumb stuff. They end up feeling so much shame and still don’t fit in. I always say, don’t do what is not you. True happiness doesn’t come until you are your true self.”

In the time since the movie’s release, the KCPC has already been contacted by local organizations and are considering plans to air the movie on television. Cohen and the KCPC have been invigorated by the success of Above the Influence – Kent County. She explains the inspiration that kept the coalition moving forward during the movie’s production.

“One of the central truths that brought us together was a quote by Lily Walker, an aboriginal Australian activist who once said: ‘If you come here to change me in a top down way then you are wasting your time. But if you come here because your liberation is bound up in mine, then let us begin.’

Cohen continues, “The quote made us understand that underage prevention is not something that can be addressed at the school domain alone, in the family domain alone, or in the faith based domain alone, or by coordinating agencies alone. It’s something that takes all of us. Everyone’s gifts, their talents, their abilities, their resources. Coming together to say we all care about the health and well being of families, community, and how can we come together to bring those strengths and do something great.”

Cohen hopes that various members of the community will find the coalition’s Community report as inspiration to become engaged in prevention.

“Data helps tell the story about our community,” explains Cohen. “One of the goals of the coalition has been how to make data palatable and understood by the average person. We need to equip parents with data so they can be effective, or youth with data so that they know the majority of kids are not using; even though they may think they are. I think data helps us to dispel myths and helps us to tell the full story.”

Beyond this year, Cohen and the KCPC will continue to advocate for prevention in Kent County and hope to involve more communities, individuals and youth.

Keg Registration Laws Designed to Prevent Underage Drinking

By Kenneth Stecker,
Traffic Safety Resource Prosecutor,
Prosecuting Attorney’s Association of Michigan (PAAM)

Article reprinted from the June 2011 Safety Network

It is very important to remember that although alcohol is legal for adults, it is illegal for anyone younger than 21 to consume or possess alcohol. Underage alcohol use can have immediate and tragic consequences such as alcohol poisoning, injury, or death, as well as long-range harmful consequences, such as increased risk for physical and developmental damage and chronic alcohol addiction (Grant, 1998; Grant & Dawson, 1997; Hingson et al., 2003). Furthermore, underage alcohol use is a serious problem for all communities. Law enforcement activities are critical, not only in limiting underage alcohol access, but also to reduce the consequences of underage drinking. One common way that underage drinkers gain access to alcohol is at parties. Young people like to have a party when their parents are away, or away from their parents’ home, like at a secluded beach or a park at nighttime. These parties may potentially become dangerous and eventually get out of control. Often, Hollywood depicts the glamour of underage drinking parties. However, that is not the case, as generally reports of alcohol poisoning, traffic crashes, property damage, community disturbance, violence, and sexual assault commonly result from these parties. Underage drinking parties create dangerous, risk-taking behaviors such as binge drinking vandalism, sexual assault, and unprotected and unplanned sex, not to mention other serious issues. Young people today have access to more money and vehicles than in the past to purchase alcohol for these parties. It should be noted that beer kegs are a popular source of alcohol for teens, especially at underage drinking parties. Young people often obtain kegs through third-party transactions or through older friends. Historically, police and other enforcement agencies have had difficulty tracing the original purchasers of these kegs who provide the alcohol to underage drinkers.

To address this issue, many states have put keg registration laws into place. On December 21, 2010, Michigan became one of those states. Public Act 344 requires that:

- Retailers selling beer in a keg to attach an identification tag to the keg, require the purchaser to sign a receipt, and refuse to return the keg deposit if the tag is not attached when the keg is returned.
- The purchaser of the beer to complete and sign a receipt after presenting a driver’s license or State of Michigan identification card.
- The Liquor Control Commission (LCC) to make ID tags available to retailers selling beer in a keg.

It also requires that a notice must be printed on the receipt in boldfaced type the same size as that used on other parts of the receipt. The notice must state all of the following:

- That the retailer will not return the keg deposit to the purchaser of the beer if the tag is not attached to the keg upon its return.
- That the individual signing the receipt does so with the understanding that he or she agrees not to damage the keg or remove or alter the attached tag.
- That the individual signing the receipt does so with the understanding that he or she is subject to liability for serving the beer to any minor.

It should be noted that this information must be on a receipt, and it requires the retailers to retain receipts for at least thirty days. Additionally, it sets an administrative fine for retailers who commit certain violations; i.e. “A retailer who has failed to apply an identification tag on a keg, intentionally failed to complete the receipt as prescribed by the commission, or failed to obtain the purchaser’s signature on the receipt is liable for an administrative fine of not more than $50.” Also of significance, it prescribes a misdemeanor penalty for people who are not retailers or wholesalers for certain violations; i.e. person who is not a retailer or a wholesaler licensed by the commission is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for not more than ninety three days or a fine of not more than $500 for any of the following:

- Removing an identification tag from a keg containing beer.
- Allowing the removal of an identification tag from a keg of beer purchased by that individual.
- Providing false information in the purchase of beer in a keg.

The law defines “keg” as any brewery sealed individual container having liquid capacity of five gallons or more. Michigan’s law should improve the ability of many communities throughout Michigan to address this type of third-party transaction that facilitates the exchange of alcohol between adults and those under the age of 21, and hopefully lead to a decrease in traffic fatalities for drivers under the age of 21. For more information on this topic and other underage drinking issues, visit www.alcoholpolicy.niaaa.nih.gov.

For more information on PAAM training programs, contact Kenneth Stecker, Traffic Safety Resource Prosecutor, at (517) 334-6060 or steckerk@michigan.gov. Please consult your prosecutor before adopting practices suggested in this article.
